

Abstract

Techniques for suspending execution of a thread until a specified memory access occurs. In one embodiment, a set of instructions executable by a machine may specify a monitor address, suspend a thread until a monitor break event occurs, and test whether the monitor break event is a write to the monitor address. If the monitor break event is not a write to the monitor address, then the thread is suspending again.

2025 RELEASE UNDER E.O. 14176